

Wayiba! Wanthiwa! Hello!

NEO-Learning is an education platform a decade in the making. We built this place for primary school teachers and students to give access to quality First Nations digital arts content, lessons and live virtual experiences.

We are an education platform for all Australian primary schools, and students from all backgrounds. We create and develop content direct from our Digital Lab in Roebourne, Western Australia.

We empower teachers to feel confidence so we can deliver First Nations content in the classroom, together. We support by developing fun classroom lessons and workshops with prompts that relate back to your local regions. Through NEO-Learning, students can access digital arts, with learning outcomes in at least one core subject, to meet the needs of our curriculum.

The Benefits of NEO-Learning

Cross Curricular Content

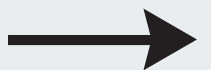

Our lessons, resources and workshops have a focus on Digital Arts and always cover at least one other core curriculum subject.

Future Focused Learning

We experiment in emerging technologies while respecting ancient knowledge. Students are our future; we inspire them to dream up a whole new world.

Community Partnership

NEO-Learning drives positive social change with the community of Ieramugadu (Roebourne, WA). At the Digital Lab, we build capacity and skills in our young artists.

Learning Portal

Explore tailored Units of Work, engaging and fun content, and interactive smartboard ready packages. Join now to bring the fun of NEO-Learning into your classroom, and come with us as we develop more learning experiences to meet your needs.

Professional Learning

NEO-Learning also offers a series of online workshops, available now for members. During these sessions, we explore how to apply digital arts as a source material for learning in the classroom. We consider how and why First Nations concepts and perspectives are so valuable in everyday learning and encourage collaboration, creativity and critical thinking. We workshop practical ways to teach First Nations content with confidence in the classroom.
